Description of problem(s)*:

* Terms and Conditions: Some calculators simply cannot be repaired due to being crushed or dropped, causing the chip connections become jarred loose. We try to the best of our ability to fix these. However, these are very difficult to repair. In some cases, the calculator may work just fine when we ship it back but when it is received, the problem persists. If this happens, we deem the calculator "Unable to Repair". In the event this happens, you have the opportunity to return the defective calculator to us and we will apply the cost of the repair toward the purchase of a new calculator. By mailing in my repair, I understand these terms and conditions.
